DISTINCTION: One person with possibility can reinvent the world.

NOTES: Yes. I am speaking to you. Starting now, producing revolutionary results is not to be relegated to someone else in some other place in some other time. The revolution can start with you right here right now with the resources and contacts you already have at hand.

You have not been prepared for the immediacy and immensity of the contributions that you are capable of making. Look at history. Reinventing the world does not take an army of engineers or barrels of money. Individuals make the difference. The gameworld is designed like this: there is no limit to what you can do to make things better.

You may have for so long been negated by your environment that you take on the tendency to negate yourself. You may have developed a habit to automatically defer to authority or tradition. You may hide in anonymity like a little fish in a big school of fish. Such habits and tendencies may successfully protect you from social ridicule by diminishing your ability to produce results, but they do not represent a limit to what is actually possible for you.

You do not respect your true capacities if you do not apply them to their maximum when appropriate. Pity the racehorse that never gets to run flat out. It may take you by surprise that withholding does no honor to your benefactors.

By the time you read this SPARK it is too late for hiding and withholding. You have barely enough time left to accomplish what is set before you to accomplish.

The key ingredient in this distinction is possibility. Possibility is the universal solvent. Possibility can move through any obstacle or resistance. This is the nature of possibility.

Possibility comes from clarity. You do not have possibility until you can clearly see what is possible. Once you have possibility, there is nothing standing between you and making it happen except persistence. Sometimes a Possibility Manager has but one option: to just keep trying, over and over again, any which way you can. It does not even matter how old you are when you get possibility. Galileo did not write his first book until he was fifty years old!

EXPERIMENTS:

SPARK046.01 Each day this week do one thing towards making the world a better place. Surprise yourself. (That may mean taking actions before you figure out what you will get for it.) Stop waiting for perfect conditions. Stop looking for permission, or for an example. Avoid considering if your action is reasonable or not, if it will succeed or not, or even if it can be done or not. Simply move. Accomplish the act without hesitation. Accomplishing this action prepares you for taking your next action. Your revolutionary act may be as simple as picking up a piece of litter that you did not drop. The next day you will be prepared for something else.

Reinventing the world is not an act of politics or law. It does not come from being a missionary for any belief system or cause. Reinventing the world is not rescuing. It is simply a creative revolutionary action that makes things better. Here are your instructions: If you do not see the possibility for creating your whole vision, create any part of the vision for which you do see the possibility, and then reassess the situation.
