DISTINCTION: Leadership involves power. Power can be used to serve conscious or unconscious purposes.

NOTES With our usual thinking, Responsibility is regarded as a burden, guilt, or blame, rather than an inspiring opportunity to create. Irresponsible use of power serves unconscious purposes and Low Drama. Low Drama includes a victim, a persecutor or a rescuer. Low Drama is based on the assumption of scarcity.

After we learn about Low Drama we can create High Drama. High Drama is responsible use of power to serve conscious purposes and is based on abundance, true leaders use High Drama to bring their own organizations to success.

Being an active contributor to the success of our organization involves numerous disciplines and practices. One of the most important discipline for success is Being Centered. When we keep our center instead of giving our center away to a projected authority figure then:

- We get present here and now
- We stand in our own Authority
- We use our value
- We make decisions
- We take responsible actions
- And we create effective results

A Gremlin leader collects peoples' centers and surrounds themselves with followers. A true leader surrounds themselves with centered colleagues and is a leader maker.
